Excerpt: .early age may be readily taught to comprehend: as they advance in years, become familiarised with its practice, and experience the beneficial effects to themselves, they will better feel and understand all its important consequences to society.-Such then being the foundation on which the practical habits of the children are to be formed, -we proceed to explain the superstructure. In addition to the knowledge of the principle and practice of the abovementioned precept, the 0 boys and girls are to be taught in the school to read-well, and to iuriderstand what they read; to write expeditiously a good legible hand; and to learn correctly, -so that they may comprehend, and use with facility, the fundamental rules of arithmetic. The girls are also to be taught to sew, cut out and make up useful family garments; and after acquiring a sufiicient knowledge of these, they are to attend in rotationin the public kitchen and eating-rooms; to learn-to prepare wholesome food in an oeconomical man-ner, and to keep a house neat and well arranged. It was said that the children are to be taught to readwell, and to understand what they read. In many schools, the children of the poor and labouring classes are never taught to understand what they read; the time therefore which is occupied in the mockery of instruction is lost; in-other schools, the children, through the ignorance of their instructors, are taught to believe without reasoning, and-thus never to think or to...
