Not illustrated. 1884 Excerpt: .Houghton, Mifflin, Co. highest rules of art unconsciously by his intercourse with artists and his familiarity with the finest music; but of conventional training under masters he had none. He wandered for a time in poverty and lonely adventure, waiting for success; but when it once came it was overwhelming, and never deserted him during his life. The whole world was swayed by his power. There is no direct analysis given either of his personal qualities or of his art. Of the former we are given to judge by many incidents and letters of his own writing, and in regard to the latter, are quoted critiques by Mrs. Child, G. N. Curtis, and others. Many letters addressed to him by distinguished persons, and of great interest, are here reproduced; and also many tributes from poets, musicians, and friends of all ranks. Appended to the volume is a paper, by Dr. A. B. Crosby, on the anatomy of Ole Bull, his pose and method of holding the violin. This must be of special interest to violinists. Eugene Fromentin.¹ The style of the biographer is stately and forcible, and at the same time vividly interesting. It loses nothing, moreover, in the translation, which is remarkably finished and excellent. The volume is very elegant in appearance, a large octavo of nearly three hundred pages, illustrated by many engravings of Fromentin's sketches. Americans will be glad to be introduced to another French painter of most interesting qualities, heretofore little...
