Good News Publishers, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Most people feel frazzled and overwhelmed much of the time. We re distracted and preoccupied in the same sorts of ways--struggling under a crushing weight of work, family, exercise, bills, church, school, friends, and a barrage of requests, demands, and desires. It s safe to say that on a typical day for most of us, our responsibilities, requirements, and ambitions add upto more than we can handle, whether we admit this or not. THE REAL THREAT The biggest dangers arising from this hectic and frustrating modern life aren t what we might expect. The most serious threats are spiritual. When we re crazy busy, we put our souls at risk. Few of us are as safe as we may think. An immediate and obvious spiritual threat is that busyness can ruin our joy. When we re frantic and frenzied, we re more prone to anxiety, resentment, impatience, and irritability. Busyness also robs spiritual vitality from our hearts, like seed-growth choked out by thorns in Jesus s parable in Mark 4. Those thorns, he said, include the cares of the world (Mark 4:19). Another danger is in how busyness covers up the rot in our souls. As Christians, we ought to understand deep down that the problem with extreme busyness isn t just with our schedules or the world s complexity--something isn t right with us. The chaos is at least partly self-created. Things aren t as they ought to be because we aren t what we should be. ROOTED IN PRIDE Our understanding of busyness must start with the one sin that begets so many others: pride. We re busy because we try to do too many things; we do too many things because we say yes...
