Such a course would diminish the attacks of serious diarrhoea and cholera infantum onehalf, and consequently very greatly lessen the infant mortality from these affections. It is well known to every careful observer that a large majority of all the attacks of this form of disease show their first beginning during the last half of the night or early in the morning, owing to the long continuance of the high temperature, coupled wiih the more still and confined air of the night. The increased tone of the whole vascular system produced by the stimulant and tonic effect of a comfortably cool sponge bath on the function of the vaso-motor nerves, applied in the evening, would enable thousands of these little restless sufferers to pass the whole night unharmed, when without it the dread weakness would begin. The views...
